

EMPIRE STATE CHILD CARE SHARE PILOT PROGRAM

For Employers

THREE PARTNERS. ONE SOLUTION.

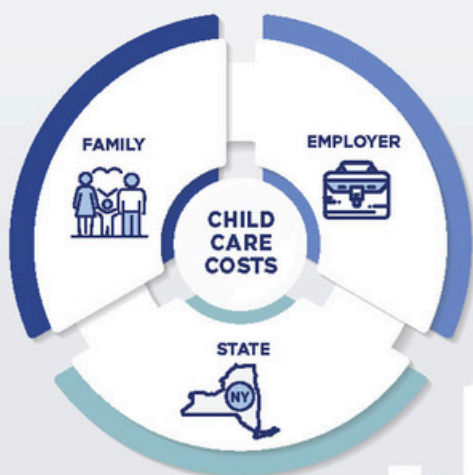

Child care challenges don't just affect families — they affect your business. When parents can't find or afford reliable care, productivity and retention suffer. Empire State Child Care Share Pilot Program helps solve that. By sharing the cost of care among families, employers, and New York State, you can offer your team access to affordable child care that keeps them working, focused, and loyal.

In the EMPIRE STATE CHILD CARE SHARE model, the cost of care is divided equally among three partners.

-  Eligible families pay one-third,
-  employers contribute one-third,
-  and New York State contributes a third.

This simple, shared approach makes child care more affordable, strengthens the workforce, and ensures providers are paid fairly.

Empire State Child Care Share Pilot Program

offers employers a practical way to strengthen their workforce and support the people who make their business run. By investing in shared child care, you help your team — and your bottom line.

- Strengthen recruitment and retention.
- Reduce absenteeism and turnover.
- Boost productivity with a more reliable workforce.
- Show leadership as a family-friendly employer.

Why It Matters

Access to child care is one of the top barriers to keeping people in the workforce. When employees can count on reliable, affordable care, they can focus fully on their jobs. Employers who participate in programs like Empire State Child Care Share report higher morale, lower turnover, and stronger company culture.
